Pam's Notes

Burr...good morning from Wisconsin.

Thinking I would be the good Grandma and attend the grandson's hockey tournament in Madison before migrating south. I had a hard time steering the car north. It seemed to think it was time to be heading the other way when it realized there was frost on the ground. I have heard that it is cool and dreary at the Tip. I hope that changes this week since I will be heading that way.

I had a note from Virginia Van Alstine:

I am having problems with my white blood counts continuing to drop. I don't feel comfortable coming to Texas until this gets resolved. I am comfortable with my oncologist in Alabama where my daughter, Denise, lives. I am leaving South Dakota to go to Alabama Oct 31st. I may spend the winter in Alabama, but if I get my blood situation under control I would like to spend part of the winter at the TIP. As I talk to people headed to the TIP I am anxious to come. Hope to see you later this winter. I really enjoy getting the e-mails from you so I can keep in touch with everyone at the TIP. Virginia

Let's keep Virginia in our prayers and hope she's able to come back this season. Make sure you check out the obituaries on the TOTFYI.com website. Thank you John O'Brien for keeping us updated. Please have safe travels and hoping to see y'all soon!!! Pam
