Pam's Notes

Happy Belated Thanksgiving.

Just received the minutes, so I hadn't forgotten you. Thank you prayers warriors....I have good news to report. Test showed that the new drug was having an improvement on the spread of my cancer. I don't want to get overly optimistic, BUT!!! This is the first drug that has caused a shrinkage after the first radiation over a year and a half ago. So God is Good and with your prayers....all is Good! Thank you. I received another infusion of this new non side effect drug and good for another 3 weeks.

I did receive a sad note from Joan Phillips Thursday morning about losing her long time husband, Don, to brain cancer metastasized from Melanoma. Don and Joan were long time Tip residents from New York before going to FL for the winters and eventually moving there. Joan was the tennis coordinator for years, when we had over 100 players in the park. Don was an enthusiastic bike rider and took several on road trips into Mexico. He will be sadly missed! Prayers go out to Joan and her family.

The cool weather has infiltrated our area. Only in the 50's and not expecting to warm up for a bit. Too cold this early in the season. The only residents you see in shorts are those who just arrived from the North.

Have a good week. Drive safely if you're heading south or even home from the Holiday. God Bless you All. Pam
