Pam's Notes

*Say your prayers....the Tip only received rain from hurricane Harvey. But, most of us know someone who was living on the coast and was in the midst of the storm. Those were not so fortunate. What terrible damage was done and many are still in danger. Our prayers do go out to them.

*I received a disturbing email via John O'brien from Linda York. This was written last Saturday.

Jim had a stroke this morning. He is in Concordia hospital. His right side is effected and speech difficulties. He can eat ok He got out of bed this morning and collapsed. Called 911 and Karin. Our home feels very empty tonight. Our son Neal is flying in tomorrow. I will keep you informed.

*If anyone has an update on Jim's condition, please let me know. We are praying for a complete and speedy recovery.

*I will be marking off my "bucket list" with a trip to Africa the next couple of weeks. I'm hoping I'll still have internet service and will be able to send out the minutes. But in case we're sidelined by an elephant or hippo and you don't get the Tip news, I will catch you up as soon as I return. Hoping I will have some pictures to share.

* Have a good, dry week. Pam
